Research Triangle Park, NC – April 24, 2016. Compliancy celebrates its 14th anniversary by releasing the latest version of its cloud-based compliance management solution. The 14th anniversary release puts more power and flexibility in the hands or our customers. It has been continually developing its core platform over this period as well as retaining and building its experience level with key employees. This has allowed Compliancy to continue to be an innovator and leader in the multi-compliance market.

Compliancy is also rolling out its new website with better integration with its core services. Customers can log in directly to ComplianceOnline.com and access other services from the website. "It's a whole new look for us. We have simplified our website while improving the functionality with integration with our services" says Jack Tackett, VP or Operations who is responsible for the web site release. "Prospective customers can now sign up for a trial or services right from the site. We have had a great response from the early release respondants."

Compliancy will continue, not only to invest in its technology but is focused on total compliance solutions by offering services to assist organizations in attaining and maintaining information security and compliance with multiple information and business standards and regulations. Contact Compliancy at www.compliancy.com to learn more about how our experience is assisting organizations today.
